Happy Friday!

As we near the end of our first half term in Y4, it would be easy to let tiredness cool our enthusiasm, but Maple class continue to give it 100%.

I'm very proud of the whole class this week in maths, as we've tackled subtracting 4-digit numbers with more than one exchange. It was encouraging to see the resilience of the children as they familiarised themselves with this new concept.

In English, we used laptops to edit and improve our work using online tools, such as thesaurus.

In music, we can now play 'Sur La Pont' on the ukulele and we're working hard to play the G7 chord.

Following our science lesson on evaporation last week, this week we learned about condensation and even made our own mini water cycle in the classroom!
