Happy Friday!

I trust you all enjoyed the weather last weekend. Let's hope the sunshine sticks around when it next returns!

In English this week, we read to the end of The Tin Forest and we're now planning a persuasive write on how we too can protect our local environment - specifically, the school grounds.

In maths, we have started our unit of work on money, recognising how we express monetary values using a decimal point, and comparing values.

In PSHE this week, we continued to explore how we can care for others and the environment. This week, our focus was plastics...Are there any small changes you can make at home to help tackle the problem of plastic pollution?

There have been some creative collages in art this week, as children link collage techniques with our natural world theme.

The swimming pool is always a highlight of the week. We are currently practising swimming 25m around the pool, as well as playing water polo.

Please note, next Friday (last day of term) is 'Break the Rules Day'.

Enjoy your weekend,

Miss Hale
