Honesty, Passion, Respect &
Determination

Happy Friday everyone!

A warm welcome to you - our Y4 parents. The children have settled brilliantly into their new class and I'm proud of each of them for managing the transition with maturity and resilience.

This week, we have started reading The Iron Man in English. The children have been building sentences to write their own narrative with a focus this week on repetition, noun phrases and similes.

In maths, we are focusing on Place Value this term. This week we have been recognising and partitioning numbers up to 10,000.

In computing, children have been learning that the internet is a network or networks joined by routers. They role-played being networks to help understand how computers around the world communicate with each other.

We have started our Art unit, which this term is all about Light and Dark. This week, children were colour mixing to create shades and tints, by adding black or white to a colour.

In history, we are learning about the Anglo Saxon period in England. This week, we learnt why the Romans left Britain and what life was like at the end of Roman rule.

We were fortunate to have some judo coaches come into school to run a taster class for children this week, which Y4 loved!

Wishing you all a great weekend, Miss Hale
