Happy Friday everyone!

It was lovely to meet so many of you this week at parents' evening. The children have had a great first half term in Y4 and I wish you all a half term full of the things that bring you joy.

We finished the end of our maths unit on addition and subtraction, with learning how to subtract efficiently and use strategies to help check our work.

In English, your children have become published authors! They wrote their own version of the opening chapters of The Iron Man in their best handwriting and designed a front cover to produce a short book.

In history this week, children learnt how converting to Christianity changed the lives of people in Britain. They reflected on whether the conversion from paganism was beneficial for both rich and poor.

In PSHE, children learnt how stereotypes can affect how they see people. They worked in pairs to write short biographies about inspirational people in the UK with disabilities.

On Monday 10th November, Y4 will be taking part in an inter-year football festival, ran by Pleiades (PLL group) who specialise in coaching and run holidays camps. Children will already be wearing PE kits and trainers due to it being a PE day. They should not bring in football boots for this.

Wishing you all a lovely half term break and many thanks for your support across the term!

Miss Hale
