Happy Friday everyone!

In maths this week, we have been subtracting 4-digit numbers with exchanges. We have used practical resources to help children understand what is happening on a PV mat and how this is shown in the formal written method (column subtraction).

We have begun editing our work inspired by the opening chapters of The Iron Man. I have been so impressed with the children's work! They have worked hard to build exciting sentences to engage a reader and next week, they will be turning their work into their own books!

Another practical activity in science this week. This week, our focus was condensation. Children used plastic cups filled with warm water, cling film and ice cubes to see condensation in action, as the warm moist water vapour cools and condenses back to a liquid.

In PSHE this week, we discussed bullying. Using a story to aid discussion, children were introduced to the term 'bystander' and reflected on how we might be able to help others if we feel they may not be being treated kindly.

In art, children finished painting they compositions with a focus on using different painting techniques and adding white and black to colours to create tints and shades.

In music, children have been continuing learning chords on the ukuleles in preparation for playing the song 'taekwondo'.

Wishing you all a lovely weekend, Miss Hale.
