Happy Friday everyone!

In history, children were introduced to Alfred the Great and what his response was to the Viking threat in Anglo-Saxon Britain.

Computing continues to excite the children as they finished planning their podcasts. This week, they wrote scripts and some children were able to record their voices in preparation for adding sound effects and jingles next week.

I was fortunate enough to see some of the fabulous dancing Y4 have been learning in their PE lessons with Mrs Masey this week! The children have also shown me great dodging and pace change in tag rugby. Please bring gloves on Wednesdays as hands can get very cold during our outdoor PE session.

The halls are filled with the sounds of carols during music lessons, as Ongar prepares for the Christmas carol concert next month. Y4 are sounding particularly fabulous!

In maths this week, we looked at dividing numbers by themselves, dividing numbers by one and multiplying by 1 and 0.

We have finished reading Odd and the Frost Giants in English and children started planning their recount from Odd's perspective.

Science was especially fun this week as children made their own set of pan pipes, as part of their understanding about pitch and how different instruments can create both high and low pitches.

Wishing you all a wonderful weekend,
Miss Hale
