Happy Friday!

Thank you for all the well wishes ahead of, during and since the London Marathon. I brought my medal in to show the children on Monday - they were very impressed with how heavy it was! Many thanks for all your support - I had the best day and genuinely loved it.

Children completed their Spring assessments in maths this week, before continuing to deepen their understanding on decimals. They recapped that 10 tenths equals a whole and 100 hundredths equals a whole.

We finished reading Cinnamon this week and the children have been writing diary entries, as Cinnamon, to reflect how she has been feeling about the attempts to help her find her voice.

In computing this week, children used the cloning tool to remove and repeat objects in photos. They also 'touched up' images and reflected on why photographers might do this with their work.

In science, we observed and recorded the results of our tooth decay experiment. We also learnt about the human digestive system, learning about the part our internal organs play in helping us digest food. As an activity, they were challenged to use materials in the class to create a life-sized digestive system!

Many children started to sew their aprons together in this week's DT lesson. They are using running stitch and back stitch. Most children are unable to tie a knot so any help in teaching them over the next week is much appreciated!

Enjoy your weekend, Miss Hale
