

Highlights of the Week

SATs

Well they might not have been a highlight, but they're done and the class handled them brilliantly. Obviously we won't actually know how each pupil got on until July, but, even without that knowledge, I can easily say that we are all incredibly proud of each and every pupil. I have seen in class that they have all made fantastic progress this year and they have all handled the tests with confidence and resilience and that's the most important thing. As a result of their positive and mature attitudes, they have been rewarded with the occasional biscuit and some extra play / football as well as slightly easier afternoon lessons this week.

We have now had an initial read through of the Production script and auditions for parts have started. Next week I hope to inform pupils which part they have so that lines can be learnt over half term. On Thursday, everyone should have come home with a slip of paper letting them know how to access the songs so those can be practised too.
