Happy Friday!

Wow. What a hot week this has been! It's been a week of two halves. The first was business as usual. But in the last three days, we've taken a more relaxed approach to learning, given the weather conditions.

In maths, we used mirrors to explore symmetrical shapes. Children then used these to help support them complete symmetrical figures and shapes on a grid. They then took their 'Properties of Shape' end of unit quiz. Next week, we will move on with 'Statistics.'

Children have planned and written an explanation text about the northern lights, in English this week - inspired by our book The Ever-Changing Earth.

Swimming in the pool this week was a welcome respite from the heat of the afternoon on Wednesday! Back in the class, we chilled out - literally - with our feet in trays of cold water and watched a film. We also popped outside for 5 minutes of hose spraying to cool down which was a lot of fun!

We sought some breezy shade on Thursday by going on a minibeast hunt in the forest school area to support our science work. Children found many different invertebrates such as spiders, beetles, millipedes and butterflies. Back in the classroom, they chose their favourite minibeast and created a short fact page about them, whilst cooling down with their feet back in their water filled trays!

The children showed great resilience this week and I wish you all a cooler weekend!

Thank you, Miss Hale

Important Messages

Your child will be spending time with their new teacher in Year 5 next week. On Monday, they will be coming home with an 'All about me' piece of homework which we would appreciate you working through with your child. This will help their new teacher and support staff in getting to know them and putting things in place to help them feel comfortable next year. Please can this work be completed and returned to school, with your child on Wednesday. Thank you!
